A random variable is a variable which changes its values all the time. It is not fixed. It is basically the outcome of any experiment like tossing a coin gives head or tail so that is random variable. Random variable can be anything not necessary always keep changing types of random variable Just used to show experiments.