A random variable is a variable which changes its values all the time and it is not fixed. It is basically the outcome of any experiment like tossing a coin gives head or tail so that is random variable. Random variable can be anything not necessary numbers and ist always keep changing. There are no types of random variables and it is just used to show randomness in experiments.